Several anti-hunger organizations will host informative presentations as well as crucial discussions on ending domestic and international hunger. A detailed agenda is included in the enclosed brochure.

The day's highlight will be the Hunger Luncheon – featuring state and international leaders, meals representing Iowa-based programs working to alleviate hunger, the presentation of the Robert D. Ray Iowa SHARES Award which annually recognizes an Iowan who has provided significant leadership confronting hunger at home and abroad and a keynote address by Mr. Dennis Dimick, Executive Editor with National Geographic. A trailblazer in communicating the complex challenges and diverse triumphs in agriculture and food security, Mr. Dimick will join us this year to speak about the magnificent National Geographic "The Future of Food" series, which explores our collective challenge of feeding 9 billion people by the year 2050, through stunning photography and profound stories from around the world.

Here is how you can get involved in the 2014 Iowa Hunger Summit:

- Plan to attend: The event is free and open to all but you need to register. You can do so at www.worldfoodprize.org/hsregister.
- Share your story: Throughout the year, the online Iowa Hunger Directory at www.iowahungerdirectory.org promotes networking and collaboration among Iowa's hunger fighters by profiling every Iowa organization, business, and civic group whose work impacts hunger in Iowa or abroad. Join the directory at www.worldfoodprize.org/shareyourstory
- Spread the word: Encourage others interested in hunger and nutrition issues to attend the Iowa Hunger Summit.

Please join us as we celebrate our common heritage of humanitarian action at the 2014 Iowa Hunger Summit, the kick-off to our World Food Prize events – known as one of "the most significant observances of World Food Day anywhere around the globe."

Sincerely,
